

Pink Old Lady crabapples (likely referring to varieties like 'Pink Princess' or similar) typically produce small, deep red fruits about 1/4 to 1/2 inch in diameter, persisting into winter and often sweet enough for jams, though bird favorites, with the tree itself being a small, ornamental variety suitable for limited spaces. ↗

Fruit Characteristics

- Size: Around 1/4 to 1/2 inch (about the size of a small cherry).
- Color: Deep red when mature.
- Taste: Sweet, similar to rose hips, making them good for jellies or fresh eating.
- Persistence: The fruits cling to the tree well into the fall and winter. ↗

Tree Characteristics

- Size: A compact, ornamental tree, often growing 6-15 feet tall and wide, ideal for smaller gardens.
- Flowers: Produces vibrant pink blossoms in spring. ↗

Common Varieties (Examples)

- 'Pink Princess': Known for its small, deep red fruit and adaptability.
- 'Pink Profusion': Features 1/2 inch fruit and attracts pollinators.
- 'Pink Cloud': Bears large, red, one-inch crabapples and has double pink flowers.